

The Tiniest 1/1000th Of A Second !

We all have the ability to decide to make decisions that will determine the ultimate outcome and the achievement of our WHY in life! There is a very thin line between being a Gold Medal winner and just being there. The Olympic games are a great example of this statement. You could win a Gold Medal by beating your competitor by the tiniest 1/1000th of a second! (Less than it takes to blink an eye.) When you compare life to the Olympics, it is the same. You need to always maintain a "Winner's Mindset" in order to attain your WHY in Life! The following is a comparison of a Winner's Mindset versus a Loser's Mindset While you are reading this, ask yourself: "Where is my mindset?" Even better yet...ask yourself: "Where is the mindset of the people who are on my Mastermind (Olympic)?" W - The winner is always part of the answer; L - The loser is always part of the problem; N - The winner always has a program; N - The loser always has an excuse; E - The winner says, "Let me do it for you;" E - The loser says, "That's not my job;" R - The winner sees an answer for every problem; VS. - The loser sees a problem for every answer; L - The winner sees a green near every sand trap; O - The loser sees two or three sand traps near every green; S - The winner says, "It may be difficult, but it's possible;" E - The loser says, "It may be possible, but it's too difficult." R - BE A WINNER Now you truly need to make a conscious decision to be a winner and always maintain a winner's mindset in order to win the Gold Medal in YOUR life! Just like Olympian athletes, you need to train EACH AND EVERY DAY CONSISTENTLY to win your Gold Medal! The #1 training method is to continually feed your mind with top-quality mental and motivational nourishment. As I say, you must be absolutely clear about your goal and be relentless in pursuit of Your "WHY!" Go For It! Action creates results. Two of the most phenomenal success habits are failures. Every habit is successful because it produces a result. If you believe that something produces a result, is it successful? Absolutely. Except the two top habits of failures are indecision and procrastination. How many people say and think, What if Only if. I should have. Oh man, I do not know? That is called indecision and procrastination. Inside indecision and inside procrastination, inside indecision is decision and inside procrastination is action and inside each one of you is a Champion.
