

Career Goals That Can Boost Your Future!

Though setting a career goal is considered to be a difficult task, it really isn't that hard. You should know how to choose a career based on your interests, abilities and academic qualifications. It is also important to analyze various career options before settling on one. Interesting Career Goals

There are some interesting career oriented goals that will help you stand apart from the crowd. Some of the important career goals that can make you successful in your desired field of work are as follows:

- Concentrate on quality rather than on quantity. Instead of trying to build a great network, spend some quality time with the contacts that you already have and discover more about them.
- Be clear about your career growth. Always have a vision about your position in one, four or six years. Decide what kind of job you would prefer to do, where it will be located, what kind of work environment you would like to have and your compensation expectations.
- Try to work to the best of your ability in your current job. One of the most important ways to be visible and rise higher in your career is by being highly passionate about your work. It is believed that when a person does well in an organization, everyone starts recognizing that individual's abilities and talking about them positively. The appreciation and recognition along with rewards keeps coming for people who continuously stay passionate and focused towards their work.
- It is essential to market yourself within the company. More often than not, people work very hard, and still senior managers or people at the higher position in a company fail to recognize their efforts. This is generally due to poor self-promotion. Marketing your efforts is one of the greatest arts - while no one like a boastful person, you still need to get the word out about your accomplishments in a direct or indirect way. For instance, you can always single out and praise a junior co-employee or your team in an email memo to your boss with copies to other managers.
- Try to develop and enhance your efforts to build healthy relationships with new people. In other words, you need to build your contact list and further expand your network. You never know who you are going to meet somewhere. Always act professionally wherever you may be and always be ready to "toot your own horn" in a positive way.

About the Author

Tony Jacowski is a quality analyst for The MBA Journal. Aveta Solution's Six Sigma Online (<http://www.sixsigmaonline.org>) offers online six sigma training and certification classes for lean six sigma, black belts, green belts, and yellow belts.

Source: <http://americanahost.com>